

Lazy Days Marina to be Site of 2008 National Marina Day

Warren, RI --Michael Shanley, chairman of the National Marina Day Committee has designated Lazy Days Marina as the site for the kick-off of this year's National Marina Day on August 9th. Lazy Days is located on Lake Lanier in Buford, Georgia.

The Association of Marina Industries (AMI) coordinates National Marina Day as an annual celebration to highlight the important role marinas play in waterfront communities all across America. Each year the National Marina Day Committee chair chooses a marina to be the symbol of all that the AMI is trying to achieve.

“Lazy Days is a first-class facility that showcases all the great things marinas have to offer and that marina operators do,” said Shanley. He continued, “I also hope by bringing the event to Lake Lanier that we’ll be able to show how we are recovering from the drought issues of last year. We want to bring the boaters back.”

Lazy Days is one of many marinas located on Lake Lanier, which last year was plagued by severe drought conditions, causing a loss in boating activity. The return of water to the lake means a much better boating season ahead and the marinas on the lake are ready to celebrate that along with National Marina Day.

“The marinas of lake Lanier are their own community and they are proud to show off their facilities. Look for many of the marinas on the lake to join in the National Marina Day celebration”, stated Shanley.
